On The Lake

Douglass Bigs supervises the volunteer fire-eaters program from the chairman's seat on the board of directors... the local fire crew lost a valued member to another kind of flame by the name of Donna Smith... a green facial is being applied to the face of Dr. Nunnelee's office... Lakeside Inn at Lakeside and Sycamore is readying for the boom by way of considerable alterations... the New Look at Cecil's Drive-In is beginning to look inviting... if you can't afford that chin-chilla coat for the little woman, you can take her window shopping at Paradise Ranch where you can appraise the garments—on the hoof... the Maniscalco 40 acre cactus ranch where each leaf is loaded with insulin, is a diabetic's paradise... while the guest of Barber Willis at lunch last week, he revealed that while crossing the foot bridge over the lake, a little fish came to the surface and yelled "water, water"... the reason Florist Kenny was in tears during Easter shopping days—he's allergic to Easter lillies... citizens are saddened at the news that Otto Gerstner was stricken with a heart attack.

Soap Sale Aids Boy To Camp

More than 300 boys from all over San Diego county are out selling soap this week, to pay their way to YMCA summer camp. For many of them this is the most soap they have been close to since this time last year. The annual soap sale is sponsored by the Downtown, Northeast, Southeast and County YMCA's to afford lads that otherwise might not be able, an opportunity to attend summer camp.

Under soap sale rules each boy is permitted to sell enough soap to pay his way to Camp Marston in the Cuyamacas, plus a small allowance for spending money while there. The entire program is endorsed by the San Diego County Grocer's Association, according to Harold Holloway manager.

It takes 10 cases of soap to get a boy to camp, and each boy can sell another two cases to earn $5 spending money. Camping activities will start this summer with the annual Dad and Lad Camp, June 8, through 10, and in addition to the six 10-day camps at Camp Marston will include YMCA and a Sierra pack trip.

The young salesmen do not receive their earnings in cash, but rather in credits for expenses at camp.

"THERE'S plenty of reasons for not getting married right now," Brad said defensively.

"Name some," Lindsey demanded.

It was a funny sort of argument, this tiff between Brad Parker and Lindsey Hillyer. They were sitting on the sofa in the living room of the Hillyer home, and they were thrashing the thing out in whispers.

"Don't talk so loud or your mother'll hear you," Brad cautioned.

"You just tell me why we can't get married," Lindsey fired back, carefully lowering her voice to a whisper again.

"Well, to begin with, I'm not making enough money. I'm just not in a position to give you the kind of things you are used to."

"Okay, that's to begin with. Now what other reasons have you got?" Lindsey urged.

"Well, I just don't think this is the right time to get married, that's all," Brad stammered.

He hadn't expected her to cry, but all of a sudden she was crying, and she was doing a mighty good job of it, too.

"You're holding something back," she sobbed, burying her head in his shoulder.

Brad cautioned her again about her mother overhearing them, and when that failed, he tried kissing away the tears, but that didn't help either. Finally he said, "Let's slip off to a drive-in movie where we can be alone to talk."

His suggestion seemed to sober Lindsey. She had a defiant look on her tear-stained face as she turned to him.

"No, I won't go to a drive-in movie with you. I didn't bring up this business about getting married. You started it, but I'm going to finish it."

You say you love me, but I'm beginning to wonder. We'll decide this thing out right here and now.

"All right, all right," Brad said, "but please keep your voice down. If you must know, I don't want to get married right now because of your mother."

Lindsey tried to understand the meaning of his words as she dabbed at her eyes. She was a pretty thing, even when her make-up was streaked with tiny rivers of tears. "You mean because you work for mother," she said, letting her voice trail off to a whisper again.

"It's not what you think," Brad said. "I get along fine with your mother. She's got the best optical shop in town, and I learned everything I know about the business from her and your dad. It's just that I couldn't be married to you and have her as my boss."

Lindsey let the words sink into her mind. She hadn't really thought of it that way at all. It was true that her mother owned the business, but she depended almost entirely on Brad to see that things were taken care of.

When Lindsey's father died, Mrs. Hillyer had remarked several times that the business would have failed if it hadn't been for Brad. And that was long before Brad had started dating Lindsey. She was nothing but a giddy school girl at the time.

Lindsey had always felt that her mother really dreaded taking over the business. It always seemed like a necessary evil. It provided an excellent living, and as far as Lindsey was concerned, that's all there was to it.

"But mother couldn't get along without you," she said weakly, not really knowing whether it was true or not.

"She couldn't when your father died," Brad said, "but she can now. She knows that business from one end to the other, and I'm just one of the hired hands."

He would have said more, but the conversation was interrupted by the noise of a car backing out of the driveway.

They ran to the door, but the car was half way down the block before they got there.

"Do you suppose mother heard us?" Lindsey asked, a frightened look on her face. "It's not like her to go off like that."

"I don't know," he answered, "but I'm going to call a taxi and we're going out." He was a little relieved that the departure of Mrs. Hillyer had ended the talk of marriage. His attitude changed to one of sheer joy when he found the note on the telephone stand.

"Dear Lindsey," it read. "I am going to Europe. I always wanted to. Please drop by the depot later tonight and pick up the car. I will leave the keys inside. And send me some clothes to the Onnex Hotel in New York. Oh, and tell Bradford that my lawyer will contact him and give him the power of attorney to transact business for the store. I'm sure Bradford can handle things. Hate to rush off without saying goodbye, but I was afraid you would object if I told you about the trip. And I have so wanted to get away from the office for a few months—maybe for good. Love, Mother."

"She heard," Brad said, folding Lindsey into his arms.

Barbed Wire Reel

It's easy to make this reel for barbed wire from an old automobile tire and five 18-inch two by fours. Just split the casing around the center so it is in two equal halves. Then, with the outsides of the two halves towards the center, space the two by fours, and nail them to the casings through the concave sides, as shown. This reel, used by an Illinois farmer, will roll easily on the ground to wind, or unwind, barbed wire.

"Many women would be more spic if they had less span," admits Hannah.

Defeating the Inferiority Complex

CALVIN OSBORN, San Diego, Calif., entered Washington Missionary college in Washington, D.C., one of the most backward, bashful students who ever crossed the campus. He had developed one of the worst cases of inferiority complex and self-consciousness anyone could possibly have.

It began when he was just a lad. He was next to the youngest in a family of six children. His mental attitude caused him to develop the habit of stuttering, and his older brothers mocked and made fun of him. Finally he got to the point where he refused to talk before a group.

All through high school he lived in that atmosphere of fear and worry. Why couldn't he recite like others? Why couldn't he answer questions in classes without embarrassment? In his Spanish class he would be asked: "Senor Osborn, Que leccion tenemos para hoy? Que pagina?" (Mr. Osborn what lesson to do have we for today? What page?) To that question and all other questions, he would answer "No comprendo" (I don't comprehend). He was afraid of his own voice. Even in college he would hide behind the one in front for fear he would be asked a question.

And he wanted to enter the ministry! He knew what that meant! Public speaking and plenty of it. There was only one thing to do, so he made up his mind that every time he had an opportunity to speak in public he would. The director of the wood-working shop at Washington Missionary college encouraged him. One morning he said, "What one man has done another can do." Then Calvin Osborn said to himself, "Cal, if you have to let some of your studies go in order to give a talk, do it. Don't worry about mistakes — everyone makes them." Opportunities came and he accepted them. In the woods, in his room, walking down the street he practiced talking, and he overcame his fear by doing what he feared most. Today as pastor of a large church he no longer stutters; his worries and fears are gone. It is as easy for him to talk as it is to eat.

Comfortable Bathroom: Happy Day

An extra supply of towels conveniently at hand speeds up the early-morning bathroom rush. Big sister is carrying Cannon's new "Marseilles."

To start your family off happily each morning, it is important to make the early bathroom ritual quick and pleasant. Especially in a one-bathroom home, split-second timing is required for dad's shaving, big sister's shower, and the children hurrying off to school.

You can solve this situation, by having all the essential bathroom necessities conveniently at hand. This avoids the familiar "Where's my towel?" or "I can't find the soap, mother."

A few extra storage shelves in the bathroom, suggests the Cannon Homemaking Institute, will go a long way toward smoothing the morning rush. These shelves hold bath towels, hand towels and washcloths, within easy reach of shower, tub or basin. The regular family linen closet, as always holds the complete household supply.

If you are planning to build a new home, add an extra bathroom or remodel your present one, remember to include two or three recessed shelves. Whether open or behind glass, they will prove helpful savers of time and energy.

Another idea is to build a set of hanging shelves of glass or wood, to hold this handy supply of extra bath and hand towels.

News in a Nutshell

Request received by marriage license bureau in Pittsburgh: "Please send me the name of the woman I married in 1922.—Harry P. Doyle, Quincy, Ill."

After telling several passengers on a train near Munich, Germany, that they had boarded the wrong train, a conductor discovered that it was he who was on the wrong train.

In the Portland "Oregonian" recently, a classified advertiser offered to rent a newlywed's "dream house" to a couple with "no children under 12."

Until the health inspector interfered, the Otira George Hotel in Otira, New Zealand, had only one bathroom but two doors leading into it. One door was marked "Ladies" and the other "Gentlemen."

Furniture Fashions

There is much more than meets the eye in today's furniture—so be sure to ask for a complete demonstration when you visit your favorite furniture store!

For instance, the table shown above may be adjusted either to dining or coffee table height.

The mobile brunch cart (new streamlined version of Grandmother's tea wagon) is equipped with concealed ball-bearing wheels. It may be used as a buffet, a small host bar or for TV snacks in the living room. Drop leaves and ample storage space are further features.

Matching upholstered dining chairs complete this interesting lined oak grouping.

Double-purpose furniture is all the rage these days and has made a vast contribution to our comfort and convenience.

Tangy Molded Salad

Cool looking and pretty as can be, with the sparkle of gelatin and ginger ale, is this molded salad. So many combinations of fruits and vegetables can be used in molded salads that they can be served often and each time the flavor will be different. Gelatin salads provide an excellent way to use small quantities of left over fruits, juices and vegetables, too.

The addition of pale dry ginger ale gives gelatin salads an unusual flavor and tang that makes them "different" and appealing to the appetite. A gelatin fruit salad can double as dessert, if you serve it with whipped cream.

Cherry-Banana Salad

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup pitted canned black cherries $1\frac{1}{4}$ cups pale dry ginger ale
1 package raspberry gelatin $\frac{1}{2}$ cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot cherry juice 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sliced bananas

Drain cherries, reserve juice. Dissolve gelatin in hot cherry juice. Add pale dry ginger ale, orange juice and lemon juice. Chill until syrupy. Fold in cherries and bananas. Pour into mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until set. Unmold on bed of watercress or crisp greens. Garnish with whole cherries. Serve with mayonnaise or cream dressing. Salad may be served as a dessert with whipped cream.

New Unit Picks and Shells Corn

Early snowfall last winter forced many farmers to leave their corn in the field for picking in the spring. One of them was Walter Erickson of Wydemere, N. D. To save time, however, he is killing two birds with one stone and is picking and shelling his corn in a single operation with a combination picking and shelling unit.

The winter of '51-'52 played a mean trick on many farmers in Minnesota and parts of the Dakotas. Before the corn had time to mature, the snows came and there was nothing for the farmers to do but wait for spring to pick the corn.

Fortunately for the farmer today, picking corn is not the serious problem it once was. Today he can pick his corn, husk it, and shell it—all at the same time and right in the field. He does not have to store the ears of corn in a crib and then worry about finding time later to shell it.

Furthermore, the husks and the cobs are left in the field to be plowed under for mulch. In this way more mineral elements are left in the soil to keep up its fertility.

The machine that does this trick for the modern farmer is the only one of its kind so far. Recently introduced by the Minneapolis Moline Company, it is considered a revolutionary development in farm equipment.

The corn picking and shelling unit can be removed from the specially designed tractor so that if the farmer wishes, he can mount a harvesting unit on it to harvest his grain or soybeans. Other attachments have been designed and soon will be in production. In the field testing stage are a baling unit and a harvest forager.

Date Palm Tree .. Another "First" for San Diego

THE LONG LOOK

Palomar Observatory, one of the greatest scientific achievements in modern history, is located in San Diego's nearby back country. It is the home of the world's largest camera, which instrument will permit the moon to be photographed as if it were but 28 miles distant.

Ideal climatic conditions are essential to the successful operation of this observatory. After years of searching for a location offering clear atmospheric conditions throughout the year, officials selected Palomar Mountain.

On the site also will be found two other observatories, one is a reflecting telescope situated atop Palomar Mountain 68 miles northeast of San Diego via Escondido and U. S. Highway 395. Turning east at Escondido, the road signs are clearly marked.

SAN DIEGO'S EARLY DEVELOPMENT IN PICTURES

The first San Diego army quarters. The first mission church and governor's residence are surrounded by homes, shops and as it appeared within the walls

(Above) The second San Diego built on the flat land below the Presidio. It was on this site that San Diego first became a city, so designated by the State Legislature. It was here that the United States Government raised the American flag and took possession in 1846. The drawing was the first made of San Diego by an Army engineer in 1846.

LOVE - INTRIGUE - COMEDY

A first rate tourist attraction must be original, entertaining, enjoyable and it must be seen only in one place. Tourists travel the world over to see unusual attractions. "Serafina" and "Stars in the West" can be annual attractions for San Diego. There has never been anything offered in San Diego, to compare with the possibilities of these Historical Operettas, excepting, the two great Expositions - 1915 and 1935, in our wonderful Balboa Park.

Why we offer these Operettas - The presentation of stage shows and etc., which have been produced for years, elsewhere, does not create prime tourist attractions of merit, for San Diego. Because as a rule tourists do not travel far to see stage shows, which can be seen at home or nearby.

Or to hear music which is regularly used on the radio or on records for home playing. All of which, although, said shows and music are acceptable for amusement; but, they are in reality "common stuff" and seldom attract the well informed and enlightened tourist, seeking the unusual.

A tourist attraction of supreme merit is the Historical Operetta. And produced annually in a Civic Theatre located amidst the fine buildings of Balboa Park, which is world famous and the center of culture of San Diego. We have the Russ Auditorium which will suffice until a Civic Theatre can be provided. We have the talent and the most enjoyable operetta - "SERAFINA"

These Operettas are new, with appeal unlike the over-played stage presentations of the past years. So, We offer these original Operettas, they can be tourist attractions unsurpassed; because they have not been produced elsewhere, most of the music has not been published, or offered for public use. Here are two historical Operettas, in all that it implies, about our San Diego.

The historical facts presented in the Operettas are such as has never heretofore been presented. Participation is available for Patrons and Sponsors send communications to -
